About Serengeti Law

With more than 120,000 users in 180 countries worldwide, Serengeti is the most widely used system for legal project management and electronic billing. In recent surveys of both law departments and law firms it is also the highest rated system for the collaborative management of legal work. Serengeti includes online bill review/auditing, legal project collaboration (including documents, contacts, deadlines, and status updates), automated budget management, and contract management. In-house counsel also use Serengeti to generate reports which analyze trends in project inventory, monitor spending, track budgets, assess developing areas of exposure, and compare results across similar projects. With only an Internet connection and an hour of training, hundreds of law departments (from the Fortune 100 to companies with solo general counsel) save both time and money by working online with all of their outside counsel worldwide. And now Serengeti Law has become a part of Thomson Reuters, the world's leading source of intelligent information for legal professionals. More information is available at: www.serengetilaw.com.

About the Association of Corporate Counsel
